In 1955 the popular American film "Rebel Without a Cause" actor James Dean used an Ace Comb, and suddenly every teenage boy had to have one, resulting in a HUGE increase in sales! Ever since, research has repeatedly proven that there is no better recognition an organization can achieve than to get your name in lights by being highlighted or associated on the Big Screen In an American movie.

Product placement in a just few episodes of a TV series for instance, can cost a brand $3 - $10 million, and more for placement on the Big Screen. Why would anyone spend that—especially your competition? Well, when Hershey's associated their name with the movie "E.T." spending one million dollars to feature Reese's Pieces in the film, Hershey's PROFIT increased by 65% during the movie's run. And the best part is, they continue to reap the benefits 35 years later.
